Municipalities League Favors Movement to Broaden Powers of Cities

PRESENT BILL AMBIGUOUS?

Opponents of Measure Declare Pending Amendment is Not Concise Enough

Home rule for municipalities was again indorsed by the League of Wisconsin Municipalities in its Thursday morning session in Lawrence Memorial chapel after the principle had been approved in previous conventions. Mayor Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee introduced the resolution favoring the present phraseology of the home rule amendment, the legality of which will be argued by Attorney Babcock before the supreme court at Madison Friday. The motion carried without a dissenting vote, although arguments had been offered against it during the debate.

A. R. Hatton, of Cleveland, who has been authorized to draft a charter for Minneapolis, and who is recognized as one of the best charter experts in the country, spoke of the history, purpose and benefits of home rule and answered the questions that were raised in the discussion of the matter. Attorney Edwin S. Mack, who represented the contrary view also spoke at the request of the convention, in order that the delegates could obtain both sides of the case.

HISTORY OF MOVEMENT

A brief summary of the history of the home rule proposal in previous conventions was submitted by Secretary Ford H. McGregor. The reason why the original amendment was defeated by the people in the 1912 election, he said, was because it was buried under a number of other proposed amendments to the state constitution. It also occasioned trouble because it originally embodied the rule and other bonded debts. In its present form, passed by the 1921 session of legislature, the latter proposition has been separated and provided for by a special resolution. Through a clerical error, Mayor Bentley, president of the league, added, the secretary published the original amendment. A friendly suit was instituted by him to determine the legality of the amendment.

"The purposes of home rule are three," said Mr. Hatton after outlining the history of the form of legislation since the first adoption by the Missouri legislature in 1875. "They are: 1. It gives the cities without specific restriction by legislation the right to exercise powers that are local in character, whereby they are enabled to deal with local problems more effectively. Second, as to the form of government, a municipality under home rule should also have the final word determining the structure of government, the kind and what officers are to be elected. Third, home rule in the United States is to leave municipalities free to determine its own procedures, thereby allowing greater opportunity for advancement.

SPATE WILL BENEFIT

"The benefits of home rule are not entirely local. State governments derive even more benefit from it than the local. Where there is no home rule, one-third of state legislation has to do with matters pertaining to municipalities and state legislatures have not the training and experience to deal efficiently with mere local problems. On the other hand, if local governments cannot be trusted to solve their own local problems they are still less competent to go to legislature and solve state problems."

Attorney Mack who was given permission to address the convention in opposition to the amendment, objected to the phraseology of the document.

ATTACKS MICHIGAN JUDICIAL SYSTEM

By Associated Press
Saginaw, Mich.—Abolition of Michigan's present judicial system and suppression of the state supreme court, probate, juvenile, municipal and justice courts, by one consolidated court was urged here Thursday by William W. Potter, president of the Michigan State Bar association and a member of state public utilities commission, speaking at the annual convention of the bar association.

The speaker urged this step "so that the administration of justice no longer may be treated with derision and contempt and that ignorant, incompetent and dishonest judicial officers may be but reminiscences of the past."

DEMOCRATS IN IOWA PLEASED WITH PRIMARY

Victory of Brookhart is Hailed As Uprising in Ranks in Republican Party

NOMINATION WAS EXPECTED

Believe Farm Bloc Will be Benefited by Outcome of This Election

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1922, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington, D. C.—Political revolution in Iowa was hailed with delight by Progressive Republicans who point to the victory of Colonel Smith Brookhart as part of the general uprising in the Republican ranks which gave Pinchot a victory in Pennsylvania and Beveridge a decisive triumph in Indiana. Col. Brookhart's nomination for United States senator was not unexpected. Privately some of the leading Republicans in official life here who know Iowa have been saying for many months that the Iowa voters would express their dissatisfaction with existing conditions when they had their first opportunity. A report spread around the capital many months ago that Senators Cummins and Kenyon after a visit to Iowa had told their friends that no one in office had a Chinaman's chance for re-election. This was at the time when the farm bloc was most vocal and when the complaint of the farmers against economic conditions was at its bitterest point.

IS OF LA FOLLETTE TYPE

Some of the men who are opposed to everything Brookhart stands for—as he is a radical of the La Follette type—frankly confessed Thursday that if Colonel Brookhart had been running six months ago he would have polled an even more substantial vote than he did this week.

In other words, they believe the improvement in agricultural conditions in a measure satisfied the discontented ones and they are hopeful enough to believe that by next autumn the discontent will have been greatly reduced.

Not so with the Progressive Republicans who admit that farm conditions were unquestionably a large factor in the expression of discontent in a state so overwhelmingly Republican but they attribute the victory to the rising tide of progressivism in the ranks of the Republican voters who this time choose to do their reforming inside the party rather than by a third political party and organization.

HELPS FARM BLOC

The farm bloc will receive much stimulus from the result in the Iowa primaries. When Senator Kenyon, chairman of the bloc resigned to accept a federal judgeship many people said that President Harding had removed one of the most powerful influences in the bloc system of politics. It was not supposed that in place of Kenyon there might come to the senate a man even more radical than Kenyon though this correspondent and others who had been watching the political situation in Iowa pointed out that state and drew attention to the possibility that Mr. Harding may have leaped from the frying pan into the fire in urging Kenyon to leave the senate.

There were observers too who said that Kenyon resigned his seat and went to the bench because of a conviction that he had developed that even a man of his sympathy for the farmers could be sure of reelection in Iowa this fall.

DEMOCRATS ELATED

The Democrats are jubilant. They insist—and some Republicans here confirm the suspicion—that many Republicans will desert their party rather than vote for Brookhart and that a situation parallel to that which occurs in Wisconsin when La Follette runs is likely to develop.

The progressivism movement in 1910 showed itself in Iowa as one of the first symptoms of party discontent. That year the Democrats captured the house of representatives. The Democrats in Washington say history is repeating itself and while they do not predict control of the senate they are beginning to feel cock sure of the house. It is too early to discuss the merits of such predictions. At this time it is significant that the Republicans expect to lose "many seats" but retain control. Everybody is agreed however, that the political pot is boiling and that the autumn elections of this year will tell an interesting story of relentlessness in the body politic.

McCumber Blocked In Effort To Give Bonus Bill To Senate

Consent Is Refused By Bonus Foes

Senator Williams Takes Advantage of Senate Rules to Halt Measure

ASHURST DEMANDS ACTION

Underwood Declares Passage of Bill is Wanted for Political Effect

Washington—An effort to present the soldiers bonus bill to the senate Thursday was blocked by Senator Williams, Democrat, Mississippi. Because of the parliamentary procedure under which the senate was operating, unanimous consent was necessary to present the bill and the report, which earlier in the day had been made public by Senator McCumber. Senator Williams, a member of the finance committee and opponent of the legislation refused such consent.

Asserting that congress had paid the claims against the government of "war profiteers" and that every time an effort was made to pay compensation to the soldiers there was objection, Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, urged Senator McCumber to move that the bill be received.

"The time has come for the use of pluck and grit and courage and sand" the Arizona senator shouted. Senator McCumber explained that he could not offer such a motion because there was a gentleman's agreement that the tariff bill would not be laid aside for controversial measures without advance notice being given. In trying to present the bill and the accompanying committee report, Senator McCumber said that after consultation with members on both sides of the chamber he would ask later to lay aside the tariff bill and take up the bonus measure.

Announcing his opposition to the measure, Senator Underwood, Democratic leader, said he would be very glad if the bill went over until after the November elections so that every man could voice their sentiment with regard to the measure. Senator Underwood asserted that the bill would not take effect until next year in any event and that if it were passed at this time the only effect would be political.

Municipal League Convention Is Big Officers' School

President Bentley Suggests Work for League of Wisconsin Municipalities at Second Session of Convention.

The convention of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities which is held Wednesday morning made rapid strides in its second business session in Lawrence Memorial chapel in the afternoon. Convention machinery had previously been set in motion by the appointment of regular committees. The usual formal addresses were made by local and league officials. Various resolutions were presented and referred in part to the resolutions committee and in part to special committees. A lively discussion followed the address by C. B. Whitnall of the Milwaukee public land commission, on city planning and zoning.

In response to Mayor Henry Reuter's words of welcome, Councilman Louis Peeke of Fond du Lac, said in part:

"There would be dense and cold, indeed, not to appreciate the cordial welcome tendered the delegates by this beautiful city of Appleton in this beautiful meeting place. We are all interested in Appleton. We want to learn something of the proposed state viaduct here. We want to learn all about your waterworks plant. We appreciate the service your chamber of commerce has done to inform the delegates about Appleton by means of descriptive pamphlets. It is my pleasure to extend to the mayor of Appleton in behalf of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities an expression of their appreciation for the splendid entertainment this city is offering us, a city that is just as beautifully situated as LaCrosse, Milwaukee, Madison, or even beloved Fond du Lac."

HEAVY GUARD FOR ROYAL COUPLE ON DAY OF WEDDING

Many Young People of Jugo Slavia To Be Married on Royal Wedding Day

By Associated Press
Belgrade—Elaborate precautions were taken to guard King Alexander and Princess Marie of Rumania during their wedding festivities Thursday. The entire route of the bridal party from the palace to the cathedral was lined with double rows of soldiers with loaded rifles and fixed bayonets. One line of the troops faced outward and the other toward the cathedral. Their orders were to shoot immediately, it is understood, if they noticed any suspicious movement among the spectators. Residents of the city living along the street through which the procession passed were forbidden to open their windows without special police permission.

Armed guards were placed on all the balconies and points of vantage and the number of spectators on each was strictly limited so that there might be clear space between each individual and his neighbors. No one was allowed to carry a camera, satchel or other objects without written permission.

The royal wedding has caused all Jugo Slavia to go marriage mad. All the eligible swains and maidens of the picturesque peasant country seem to want to get married this week, and the churches are flooded with applications for licenses.

OPEN TRIAL OF SUIT TO BREAK UP MALT FIRM

C. W. Mory is First Witness in Case Started by Bertin Ramsey Heirs

EXPLAINS LOAN OF FUNDS

Witness Tells How He Obtained Commission on Sale of Product

C. W. Mory, president and general manager of the Wisconsin Malt and Grain company, was the first witness for the defense to be put on the stand in the case in which Mrs. Hattie E. Watson and Mrs. Ethel R. Park, heirs of the late Bertin Ramsey, petition that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the business and affairs of the Wisconsin Malt and Grain company, which opened in circuit court on Thursday morning. The plaintiffs charge that the defendants, C. W. Mory, William J. Mory and C. S. Dickinson, stockholders and directors of the company refuse to dissolve the company and divide the net sum and that C. W. Mory has misappropriated funds of the company.

Mr. Mory was examined, after the preliminaries of the case as to the ownership of the Wisconsin Malt and Grain company had been disposed of by James H. McGillan, attorney for the plaintiff. Mr. Mory was asked by the plaintiff's attorney whether he had had any offers made him by Mr. Park or J. P. Frank his attorney for his stock in the company. He was asked whether he offered his interest in the company amounting to 350 shares to Mr. Park for $20,000. He said that the course of a conversation with Mr. Park he did say he would take $20,000 for his stock but that he had never had any dealings with Mr. Frank concerning a transfer.

HAS NO DEBTS

According to the testimony of Mr. Mory, the Wisconsin Malt and Grain company does not owe a dollar and that the accounts with the exception of a note for $1,500 are not collectable. The plaintiff's attorney took up the expenses of the company since it has ceased to manufacture malt. He also brought out the fact that William J. Mory owes the company $560.02 and that Karl D. Mory owes the company $200.

Mr. Mory said that the money which Karl D. Mory owes the company is an account which was opened while Karl was bookkeeper of the Wisconsin Malt and Grain company before the war. He said that he did not know anything about the $200. When asked why he, the father of the bookkeeper and the president of the company, did not know anything about this money, he replied that a man who does a million-dollar business can scarcely be expected to know about the things which the bookkeeper is hired to take care of.

In regard to the money which William J. Mory owes the company, C. W. Mory explained that it was for coal which the former had purchased during the war. The Wisconsin Malt and Grain company had a considerable amount of pea coal during the time when it was scarce. William Mory, a stockholder and director of the company, is also engaged in the coal business. He obtained permission from his brother to take this pea coal and substitute soft coal, which was used in the plant for it. The soft coal was delivered from time to time, but Mr. Mory still owes the company $560.02. Both of these accounts were in the group which the president of the company deemed worthless and which were to be set aside.

PAID AS A WATCHMAN

The plaintiff's attorney also went into the matter of C. W. Mory's salary which was decreased to $3500 a year from $5,000 on July 1, 1920. Mr. Mory also received a salary of $100 a month as a watchman and his brother, William J. Mory received a salary of $50 a month as night watchman. These salaries were paid because the insurance company had paid the insurance.

Spread Cost Over Period Of 43 Years

Finance Committee's Measure Proposes $3,845,659.481 Expenditure

WILL ELIMINATE CASH PLAN

Saving in Government Costs and Interest on Foreign Debt to Pay Bill

By Associated Press
Washington—The soldiers bonus bill was formally presented Thursday in the senate by Chairman McCumber.

of the finance committee, with an accompanying report placing the probable cost of the federal government at $3,845,659,481 spread over a period of 43 years from next January 1. This is approximately $250,000 less than the estimate under the bonus bill, which would be $4,098,719,350 payable over 20 years.

Then senate bill estimate was prepared by treasury experts and is based on the theory that 75 per cent of the 4,458,193 veterans who would be eligible for compensation would elect the adjusted service certificate option; 22 1/2 per cent, farm, home and land settlement aid and 2 1/2 per cent vocational training aid. Should all of the veterans select the certificate plan the total cost would be $4,456,545,975.

With reference to financing the legislation, Chairman McCumber's report said it was hoped that the reduction in governmental expenditures plus the payment of interest on the refunded foreign obligations would be sufficient to obviate the imposition of additional taxation.

As to the refunded foreign obligations the hope was expressed that this soon would be obtained and "that it will be possible for the foreign governments to provide for the immediate payment of interest thereon, so that such interest can be used toward defraying the expense authorized under this act."

Senator McCumber explained that an attempt had been made to reduce to a minimum actual cash payments under the bill during the next three years while the treasury is engaged in refunding the nearly seven billions of dollars of maturing government obligations. The estimated cost of the bonus for those three years was $242,000,000.

The most important change from the original measure is the elimination of the cash bonus and reclamation service. As now drafted the legislation would give each veteran the right to select any one of the following plans:

- Adjusted service pay but only if his adjusted service credit did not exceed $50.
- Adjusted service certificate with bank and government loan provisions.
- Vocational training aid.
- Farm and home aid.
- Land settlement aid.

The estimated cost for each of these plans is $3,845,659.481 for the cash payments; $3,845,659.481 for the adjusted service certificates; $412,425,000 for farm, home and land settlement aid and $52,325,000 for vocational training.

The expenses under vocational training and cash bonus would end in 1925 under this estimate and those for farm, home and land settlement aid in 1929. Expenses under the certificate plan would continue to 1966 with a total of $659,991,670 to 1943 when the certificates would begin to fall due.

Explaining the bill Chairman McCumber said in his report that the amount of the adjusted service credit would be at the rate of $1 a day for domestic service and $1.25 for foreign service, less than $50 bonus paid when the Veterans were discharged from the service.

In no event, could the total exceed $500 in the case of those who had only domestic service and $625 for those who had both domestic and foreign service.

The adjusted service certificates, payable at the end of 20 years from the date of issue or sooner upon death would have a face value of 3.01 times the total amount of the adjusted service credit. Until January 1, 1926 banks would be authorized to loan to the veterans an amount equal to 50 per cent of the adjusted service credit plus interest at the rate of 4 per cent compounded annually from the date of certificate. After January 1, 1926 the government would make loans on the certificates in varying amounts to the time negotiated.

City Officers' League Eats, Sings And Takes Part In Discussions

Village Improvements and Municipal Publicity are Principal Subjects at Business Meeting Following Banquet.

A Wisconsin products dinner at the Elk club Wednesday night was the material part of Appleton's entertainment program for the benefit of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities in convention here. After the banquet the women delegates were treated to a theater entertainment, while the men remained for a business session in which the questions of Village Improvements and Municipal Publicity were discussed.

On menus printed by an Appleton firm on paper made and coated by concerns in the vicinity, Wisconsin products made up the first course from local dealers. For the information of the delegates the production and value of the products in Wisconsin were listed as follows: 474,000 head of beef, $14,960,000; 38,285,000 bu. potatoes, $28,623,000; 45 acres asparagus, $91,395; 245,000 bu. cucumbers, $465,000; 1,207 acres tomatoes, $224,422; 75 acres lettuce, $29,004; 5,154,170 bu. wheat, $5,154,170; 250,220,000 lbs. cheese, $46,659,500; 375,365,000 lbs. butter, $34,074,250; 5,295,000 gals. ice cream, $5,953,450; 5,000,000 quarts strawberries, $70,470; 250,000 tons sugar, $25,000,000; 43,606,000 lbs. tobacco, $16,715,000. It was added that the annual production of milk in Outagamie co. would furnish every person in America one pint of milk a year.

The musical part of the program was furnished gratis by the Rainbow Gardens orchestra and Miss Kaeren Curtis. "On Wisconsin" was asked for several times, the delegates joining in on the chorus.

HAWES PRESIDES
J. A. Hawes, former mayor of Appleton, acted as master of ceremonies and tendered the delegates the regards of the people of the city with the hope that their stay here might be a pleasant one. Mayor A. B. Bentley of LaCrosse presided over the evening business session that followed.

The two principal speakers of the evening, H. M. Sperry of Shorewood, and Robert Green, city editor of The Milwaukee Journal, were detained. Their places were taken by Charles L. Hammersley, city attorney of Shorewood, and an Appleton newspaper man.

WON'T SPEND MONEY
Speaking on Village Improvements, Mr. Hammersley said that the reason why a village stays a village is because it is not willing to make improvements, and that people are afraid of the taxes they incur. No village can attract residents nor can it grow, unless it is willing to appropriate money for drainage, highways, lighting and other improvements. He maintained that the village of his own village, Shorewood, in ten years had grown from a 705 to 4,500 population and from $500,000 assessed valuation to that of $12,000,000.

Shorewood has 20 miles of concrete paving, 22 miles of water mains, 20 miles in sewers and 25 miles of sidewalk. It has an ornamental lighting system, has planted 7,000 elm trees, built an adequate school and purchased 15 acres for its high school. It maintains a vigilant health department, he said, the matter of garbage and epidemics offering no difficulties there.

"Your village business will increase in proportion to the money you put in public improvements to make the village a fit place of habitation," he said. He advised villages to get their streets graded and paved, plant trees, have a good water, sewer and drainage system; build good sidewalks, have an adequate lighting system, and reliable police protection. Property should be planned to conform to a general zoning scheme and keep out of residence districts places of business and amusement that are injurious to the homes, thus stabilizing the value of the homes and giving people an incentive to own their own homes and improve them.

JANSEN SEEKS ADVICE
In the discussion that followed President Anton Jansen of Little Chute asked for information on bond issues, saying that his village had no fire protection. Mr. Jansen said that the village of Little Chute had paved two and fourth miles last year, but made the mistake of raising the entire amount of $150,000 in one year, instead of floating a bond issue covering a period of several years, which would not have caused such a hardship. Mr. Hammersley said that he had several forms for bond issues that delegates might inspect at their request. Mayor Leaven of Hartford told of the difficulty his village experienced in the matter of planning a baseball park and extending a street through it. He was informed by Mr. Hammersley that a city should adopt a building code and issue building permits and it would not get into difficulty. The question of E. H. Fisher of Waterloo as to whether that city which had wanted an option to an oil filling station, could rescind that action, was answered in the affirmative by Mr. Hammersley. He said that such action had been sustained by supreme courts. Mayor Lund of Racine and Mr. Childers of Munroe asked similar questions of prohibiting undertaking establishments and garages in residence districts, and received the same answer.

NEWSPAPERS WORK
The second matter to be discussed at the evening session was Municipal Publicity, presented by a representative of the Post-Crescent. The scope of the newspaper is to furnish its readers with news, he said. Every paper has two departments, the editorial and the news department. Many people confuse the two, the speaker added. News matter in the average paper is not governed by an editorial policy. News pertaining to the management of city affairs is one of the same public interest. This is in some cases however, difficult to obtain, due to reticence of public officials, he declared. The publication of official proceedings is too legal for the average reader to understand, as it merely gives the transactions without telling him how the conclusions were arrived at. City officials should not hesitate to tell the representative of the press all there is to be said of a meeting or program and take him into their confidence. The more he knows of the situation, the more accurate will be his account of it in the paper, he said.

In reply to the complaint by Mr. Hammersley that newspapers habitually grab the facts, Secretary Hugh Corbett of the Appleton Association of Commerce said that in all his years of dealing with newspapermen, facts were almost in every case presented to the public as he had divulged them. Mr. Moore, city clerk of Marinette, also expressed himself in favor of taking newspapermen into one's confidence. Ashland's mayor described the newspaper as the mouthpiece of the city government. Every city and village should cultivate utmost harmony with its newspaper as it is of value to the government in presenting to citizens much information that officials are desirous of giving them.

Secretary Ford H. McGregor of the league, declared that the matter of municipal publicity had been much neglected. Public officials are very much subjected to criticism, and most of the criticism is due to the lack of information or insufficient amount of information, he said. People hear only one side of the case and immediately begin to criticize. City officials being sensitive to criticism often lack the courage to take action on the open, whereas they can accomplish much and reap less criticism by laying all their cards on the table he declared. This is most true in matters pertaining to taxation, on which there is a surprising amount of ignorance, he said.

ZONE CITIES TO PREVENT WASTES, PLANNER ADVISES

Session of League Convention is Devoted to Discussion of Zoning and Planning Wastes are threatening the prosperity of municipalities, and cities are doomed unless they learn to put on the brakes, E. B. Whitnall of the Milwaukee public land commission, speaking at the Wisconsin Municipalities convention Wednesday afternoon on the city planning and zoning, declared.

"Wastes are preventable by proper planning and zoning," he said. "Adoption of a plan of arteries leading to the principal objective points in a city will eliminate a large percentage of wastes in present paving systems. Waste in the health of the population can be avoided by building parks and living inside of them rather than outside. City zoning and the imposal of building restrictions will help stabilize values of property. Provision must be made for territory to be occupied by manufacturing concerns."

Mr. Whitnall showed by means of various illustrations how nature is stopping wastes. He spoke of nature's drainage system, the perfect circulation in trees, the hunger of vegetation for animal wastes, and the process of natural selection and adaptation.

"There are a few things that a city planner must not forget," he concluded. "The earth still belongs to God and we are but sojourners. We are to benefit by the proper use of it and not destroy it. Normal atmosphere, sunlight and the right to use the earth are universal inheritance. If we violate nature's law, we suffer. The word 'interdependence' is taking its place. Convenience and efficiency are the only economy and gold is not a factor at all."

MAYORS DISCUSS CITIES
Following the address various city representatives were asked to tell of their city planning zoning experiences. Mayor Wiesner of Green Bay explained that city in its expensive planning program is not condemning any present private property. Mayor Welch of Janesville, where the city planning is also in effect, said that the system obviates instituting frequent condemnation proceedings. The city planning in that city is under the direction of the city engineer.

Leonard Smith, Appleton's city planning engineer, said that within a few weeks he would present data on the city planning and zoning project here. The first requisite, he said, is to tell the idea to the citizens.

Under the zoning plan manufacturers can do better business when assigned their proper territory, than where they are cramped. Appleton's city planning and zoning project is costing the city $4,000, Alderman Laabs explained.

BADGER CROPS IN GOOD CONDITION

Crop Reporting Service Says Corn Acreage is Reduced by Cut Worms

Crops made a seasonable growth during the past week, reports from the Crop Reporting service at Madison indicate. In the eastern northeastern and northwestern districts soil is becoming too dry, in the southern third of the state, it is becoming too wet. A light frost on June 1 in northern Wisconsin did no appreciable damage. Corn planting is nearly completed but in many scattered localities it is delayed by wet soil conditions. Germination generally was excellent, but cutworm is reducing the stand in many counties. A few fields are being replanted. Wheat cultivation has been begun in western counties. Winter wheat is beginning to head. Spring wheat is making good growth except in the low parts of the country. Oats stand is good and growth is excellent. Barley is growing rapidly with rust reported in many places. Rye is tall, well headed, and in excellent condition generally. Clover and alfalfa, where they are not killed out, have made a heavy growth. Timothy is in fair to good condition. Much emergency hay acreage going into millet, sudan grass, etc. Potato planting is general with the soil in a fair condition. Pastures generally good to excellent but becoming low in soil moisture in eastern and northeastern counties. Cabbage plants are numerous and of good size. Planting will be early. Apples and cherries showing heavy. Livestock is improving in flesh.

KIMBERLY-CLARK NURSE WILL VISIT IN ALASKA

Miss Helen V. Stimson nurse of Kimberly-Clark Co. and sister, Miss Irene Stimson, nurse at Rockford, Ill., expect to leave on June 17 on a trip to Alaska. They will go by way of Seattle, Wash., where they will attend the national convention of nurses, and where they will be guests during their stay in that city of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Spencer, formerly of Appleton. They will be absent six weeks.

REFUSE TO ALLOW PRIEST TO TEAR UP HIS CAR LINE

Railroad Commission Rejects Petition of Appleton Owner of Green Bay Line

The problem as to what will be done with the Bay Shore Street Railway Co. property in Green Bay still is uncertain. A petition to the rate commission to permit the owner to surrender his immediate permits, to take up and dispose of his property and to go out of business was dismissed in an order by the railroad commission received a few days ago by Green Bay Association of Commerce. The dismissal of the petition leaves the railway in the same status as before filing the application, and city officials were uncertain what to do.

The street railroad in question is owned by A. W. Priest of Appleton. The matter has been referred to the Green Bay city attorney for action to enforce the operation of the road under the permits.

The commission found that irrespective of whether the property can be made to earn on its capitalization, it will be of greater value as a going concern than it would be if the line were abandoned as contemplated, and that there would be no advantage to the owners to abandon a system that renders what appears to be much service in the community.

The order states that the commission is without authority to authorize the surrender of the indeterminate permits, or the taking up and disposal of its property, and the testimony does not justify an order permitting the cessation of operation. The permit is ordered dismissed.

Church Will Make Use Of Radio, Dr. Holmes Says

Appleton Pastor Has Elaborate
Radio Set Installed in His Home

Radio will not usurp the pulpit, but the pulpit will utilize radio in the interests of the church, is the belief of Dr. J. A. Holmes, pastor of First Methodist church, who is numbered among the latest to join the growing ranks of radiophone enthusiasts and is probably the first clergyman in Appleton to install a radio receiving outfit in his home.

A minister radio amateur in Appleton arouses much speculation as to the possibilities and future of this still youthful invention in the churches, and people are watching with interest which church in the city will give its worshippers the benefits of listening to long distance sermons, lectures and sacred concerts. A church that has utilized this opportunity to a considerable extent is Christ Episcopal church of East Pittsburg. Other churches are beginning to fall in line, but it is doubtful if any church has as yet installed a broadcasting set. Even the East Pittsburg church sends its services by telephone to the famous Westinghouse station.

MADE IN APPLETON
Dr. Holmes' apparatus, which is somewhat more elaborate than the average set, was constructed in Appleton and therefore installed at a saving of expense. It is equipped with both the honeycomb coil and the vario coupler system, which permits of easier tuning facilities and increases the sound. The set includes two stage amplifiers, in addition to the detectors. Dr. Holmes uses two sets of batteries and 80 ampere storage batteries. He expects also to install a rectifying outfit to restore batteries. The aerial is 175 feet long, single wire, and 60 feet high.

Dr. Holmes is not exactly a novice in the radio game. He interested himself in the matter long before he installed his outfit. He has found the hobby exceedingly fascinating and his only regret is that he has so very little time to experiment with it. Being away from home generally in the early part of the evening, he naturally misses much of the best part of the day's program. Yet programs now are also being broadcasted at a later hour for the benefit of Pacific coast stations, which can be received between 10 and 12 o'clock.

"Next to Marconi's wireless," Dr. Holmes' invention of the amplifying tube is the marvel of the century," the Rev. Mr. Holmes said after he had just caught wireless messages from the Atlantic. "To me it is wonderful. So many remarkable improvements have been made in this field that it has been brought to the attention of the people in a wonderful way. Educational institutions will make the greatest use of radio by broadcasting lectures of hygiene and sanitary nature and the like as well as music. Farmers will also benefit by it greatly in receiving weather, crop and market reports."

"Just how far radio will be pressed into the service of the church, remains to be seen. Certainly it would be an advantage to a church to advertise a lecture by a celebrated speaker or a high standard concert that could be heard by radiophone. The program would fit in very nicely the regular church service."

72 SERVICE MEN SERVED BY RED CROSS IN MONTH

Local Chapter is Helping Three Men Obtain Vocational Training

Appleton Red Cross center rendered assistance to 72 former service men during the month of May, according to Miss Ann Helm, secretary. The number of Appleton men applying for help was 30, the number from the county 42.

There were three applications for vocational training and one has obtained training. Miss Helm assisted two men to secure navy retainers pay. Four men asked for information pertaining to insurance. Request was made for one man for bonus from another state. Three men filed claims through the office for grave markers, as promised by the government. In one case parents did not receive allotment while the son was in service, according to the claim.

It appears that a large number of men have not applied for their victory medals, due every veteran of the world war. Last month 14 medals were secured through the office upon application. In 19 cases additional evidence was obtained by affidavits in making claims. Eleven affidavits were received from citizens within the city for veterans.

The service census now in progress in Outagamie-co. has brought two new additional claims. It also brought 25 applicants for victory medals and three requests for information on insurance.

Dr. Carey's famous prescription No. 777 (Liquid or Tablets) is not recommended for everything, but we cannot too strongly urge its use if you suffer from annoying bladder troubles, frequent passing of water night and day, with smarting or irritating, brick dust sediment or highly colored urine, burning irritably with loss of flesh, backache, rheumatism or any other tendency to Bright's Disease, Diabetes or Gravel, for kidney disease in its worst form may be stealing upon you. Don't wait until tomorrow to begin the use of this wonderful prescription if you have any of the above symptoms. Kidney and Bladder troubles don't wear away. ## 462 CHANGES OF ADDRESS THIS YEAR

One-tenth of the homes in Appleton have seen changes in the occupants this year. Since Jan. 1, 462 families have moved from one home to another within the city, according to changes of address left with the carriers of the Appleton Post-Crescent. This number, however, does not take into consideration the people who moved out of Appleton for other cities. Postmaster Gustave Keller said.

The month of May was by far the busiest moving month, and the ward which witnessed the most changes is the First ward. Distributed according to wards, the removals were as follows: First, 125; Second, 33; Third, 76; Fourth, 53; Fifth, 88; Sixth 87. A number of the movers were roomers.

MORE WAGE REDUCTIONS

The railroad labor aboard is cutting wages with a vengeance. Following on the announcement of a substantial reduction in the wages of the maintenance of way employees, aggregating some $50,000,000, the board has issued an order lowering the pay of some 400,000 employees in the shops to the extent of about $60,000,000 yearly. Approximately 1,200,000 railroad employees have recently had their wages reduced. The unions are now engaged in taking a vote of these men to determine whether a strike shall be called in protest.

We do not know where public opinion will lie in these orders cutting the wages of railroad employees. Public sympathies to a large extent are based upon sentiment and self-interest. We do think, however, that as a matter of ethical and sound business judgment, the wage cutting business is in general being overdone. While it is true that the cost of living has been reduced somewhat, it is a fact that rents continue to be exorbitantly high, especially in the large cities, and that many families with fair incomes have difficulty in making both ends meet. Furthermore, if we enact a high protection tariff, it will undoubtedly increase the cost of living to such an extent as to practically offset the reductions that have been made.

The Post-Crescent does not believe that a return to prosperity and normal conditions is dependent upon wholesale or material cutting of wages. We believe that the national prosperity will on the contrary be promoted by preserving a high wage standard. We think most industries show an adequate profit on a so-called high wage basis and that it will not undermine their ability to compete in the markets of the world for international trade. In many lines of competitive industry the labor cost is so small as to be secondary. We have developed our machinery to an extraordinary degree of efficiency, far exceeding that of any other country in the world, and operating to reduce our labor costs notwithstanding the wage itself is high. In industries of this character wages ought to be kept at the highest possible point.

The railroad business may not be in this class, but on the other hand it is not competing for international trade and there is no question but what very large economies can be effected in other fields than that of labor, permitting both better service and lower rates. We know there is an enormous amount of useless duplication in railroad operation and other extravaganzas which could be removed by consolidation and change. The railroads of all employing institutions should have the highest class men and should pay them high wages. The hazardous nature of their employment and the great care that should attend their occupation from the standpoint of public safety demands a wage scale that is an incentive to effort and loyalty. We think it is unfortunate that the labor board has felt called upon to make these sweeping wage reductions ostensibly because public opinion forced the Interstate Commerce commission to lower freight rates.

GOVERNOR LOSES AGAIN

The supreme court has denied the motion of Governor Blaine asking for a rehearing of the case of Hans Rodd, Oneida county sheriff, whom the governor attempted to remove from office last April because he disobeyed an executive pardon of a strike sympathizer imprisoned for contempt. We think it will appear to most citizens that it was somewhat presumptuous on the part of Mr. Blaine to attempt to re-open this case after the complete and emphatic decision handed down by the court against him.
The court holds that the governor cannot not pardon for civil contempt of court and that a peace officer who refuses to obey a void order of the executive cannot be removed from office by him, merely because he obeyed the law and not the governor. The reasoning back of this decision is so palpably sound and inconceivable that we are surprised that the governor was disposed to challenge it in a motion for a rehearing. Had the governor's contention been sustained we might as well abolish our courts so far as their power to protect life and property and to enforce their orders, is concerned.

Wisconsin is not yet disposed to throw aside the guarantees of our civil liberties, even at the instance of its governor. There is a deal of social revolution in the air, and it is not confined to any one class or party, but we have not turned to political revolution which abandons established institutions and leaves us suspended in mid-air with nothing on which to rest our feet.

PRESIDENT'S LEADERSHIP NEEDED

It is reported from Washington that President Harding has finally decided to assert himself as the real head of the Republican party in an effort to lead congress out of the wilderness in which it has lost itself. It is time. For the last five years there has been a steady deterioration in the capacity and the work of congress. The culmination of this inefficiency and incompetency has been reached in the present session, which without doubt is one of the very worst on record.

It was Mr. Harding's policy when he became president not to interfere with the activities of either the house or senate, but rather to serve as a peacemaker and harmonizer when differences arose in either body over legislative policy. He did not assume the role of leader, not only because of his temperamental aversion to "taking sides," but because of an apparently honest conviction that this was not the function of the president in the relation of that office to the legislative branch of government. There was in consequence no leadership, and since none of any character has developed in congress itself, both the house and senate have drifted until they have reached the chaotic state.

The senate "got in bad" with the people when it voted to seat Senator Newberry. This unquestionably was one of the greatest political blunders made by any administration in Washington in many years. The house has not detracted from this odium by voting to squelch the proposed investigation of Attorney-General Daugherty in the hope of suppressing the scandal raised in congress by members of his own party.

When we come to strictly legislative matter, we find a similar condition and the same indifference to public opinion. The handling of the bonus bill has thus far been a poorly concealed attempt to deceive the ex-service men and to in some manner capitalize non-action into campaign material for next November. There is no indication that the house and senate will reach an agreement, or if they do that they will enact a bill acceptable to the president, who in this case has come the nearest to exercising his prerogatives as party leader by serving notice on congress that he would approve no act which did not provide for raising the revenues necessary to pay the bonus, and this through the agency of a sales tax.

In the matter of the tariff little progress has been made and the measures reported by the ways and means and finance committees have been deluged with such a storm of protest and denunciation as never before marked the consideration of such legislation. The ship subsidy proposal of the president languishes, as do the appropriation bills and other important matters before congress. In the absence of aggressive leadership which could define administrative policies with finality, congress has thrashed wildly about and is no nearer results than it was months ago.

In view of this situation and the near approach of the congressional elections it is imperative that the president assert himself and endeavor to whip the legislative program into something like definiteness. Until this is done it is useless to expect satisfactory action, and no action would be preferable to unsound or popular action. The country now looks to Mr. Harding to step into the breach and take charge of the shattered forces. Failure on his part to do this, and to do it quickly and effectively, is likely to reflect itself in disastrous consequences next November.

GOITRE VERSUS TUBERCULOSIS

A nurse writes:
".....The patient was healthy in every way and had no symptoms or signs of tuberculosis, only her pulse averaged 108 to 120 per minute and she was about 20 pounds underweight. The doctors could detect no physical signs of trouble in the lungs and X-ray pictures showed nothing wrong there. After many months she presented indications of thyroid gland enlargement and the doctors now consider that she has had exophthalmic goitre from the very beginning, although her eyes appear all right.
"Can such trouble develop as a complication of lung tuberculosis? What is the cause of exophthalmic goitre? Would X-ray treatment or diet be of much value in the treatment of such a case?"
This is not the first case of exophthalmic goitre that has simulated lung tuberculosis in the earliest (incipient) stage, nor are these the most competent physicians who have been misled in the diagnosis of such a case. There are a considerable number of such cases which challenge the diagnostic skill or judgment of the best of physicians—but fortunately for the patient it is a matter of small moment, since the mode of treatment generally employed for exophthalmic goitre is the same as that which is most helpful in incipient tuberculosis of the lung, namely, rest in the open air, sensible diet, appropriate medication (to meet the individual conditions) good general hygiene.
The fact that a case of exophthalmic goitre may so closely resemble beginning lung tuberculosis gives a hint of the cause of this type of goitre. The term "exophthalmic" refers to the prominent, bulging, wide, staring or frightened looking eyes of one with this type of goitre, although the correspondent mentions that this particular patient's eyes appeared normal. Exophthalmic goitre is nevertheless a frequent condition even without exophthalmos and more interesting, too, than Hamlet without the melancholy Dane.
One of the important functions of the thyroid gland, which gland is affected in the various kinds of goitre, is the production of an internal secretion (some substance or ferment or element given off from the gland into the blood stream) which may be likened to the ignition spark in the internal combustion engine, the thyroid secretion seems to regulate internal combustion in the human machine. Life is a combustion process. In many diseases, states due to bacterial infection, such as lung tuberculosis, the rate of human metabolism or metabolism is increased. This throws a greater burden on the function of the thyroid, and consequently the thyroid overworks—and that is what doctors call hyperthyroidism or exophthalmic goitre.
Other conditions of life may overtax the thyroid function and induce the same result. Excessive emotional excitement is a common factor of hyperthyroidism and in some cases the trouble dates definitely from some emotional shock such as a great fright or sudden bereavement. The advised indulgence in alleged "blood purifiers" and "detoxifying remedies" which contain iodide of potassium has apparently brought on exophthalmic goitre in some cases. This is one of the seldom considered injuries nostrum nibblers suffer for their curious credulity.
Perhaps a majority of cases of exophthalmic goitre present no obvious enlargement of the neck at first, and in any case the enlargement is much less noticeable than it is in the simple goitre of young girls or the huge, the harmless cystic goitre, of adults.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Boy Athlete

My boy, aged 15, is enthusiastic over athletics and wishes to be a runner. But often after running he becomes sick at his stomach and has cramps in his legs. There comes a swelling around his stomach, and after that he vomits bile. Then the cramps leave his legs and he feels all right again.
(M. J.)
Ans.—Of course I can form no opinion without having examined the boy, but it may be that he overtaxes his heart in running. Boys going in for athletic prowess require the best medical supervision through their training, and endanger their hearts if they attempt training without such supervision.

B Wins the Red Flannels

Kindly answer the following to settle an argument. A declares that one who eats the seeds or pits of apples, grapes, etc., will get appendicitis. B says he is not apt to. (R. G.)
Ans.—B wins. The seeds of berries, grapes, raisins and other fruits and even the pits of some fruits, rather than prevent appendicitis.

Pipeless Furnace

We are building a new home and planned to have hot air heat by way of a pipeless furnace. Several people, including experienced furnace men, say this is unhealthful, unclean and unsanitary. Is that true, and if so, why? (D. F. W.)
Ans.—The pipeless or one pipe furnace is quite as sanitary as the ordinary hot air furnace and quite as clean as any other kind of furnace.

Morning Bath

I have been in the habit for the last few years of drinking from a pint to a quart of warm water each morning to wash the stomach. I take about 20 minutes, consuming the last of the water half an hour before breakfast. Is this too much to drink? (H. G.)
Ans.—No.

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

RUTH FURNISHES AMUSEMENT TO EDITORS

The suspension of Babe Ruth for challenging the universe to fistic combat after an unsuccessful encounter with an offensive umpire, and his subsequent speedy reinstatement by Ban Johnson, has served to distract the attention of the editors of the country from other more momentous affairs of state. They have had a pleasant time discussing the case; some seriously denouncing the fact that Ruth made to realize that the game is bigger than the player, while others, in a more or less ribald fashion, annexed personal amusement from the Bambino's experiences. But the comment served to show if nothing else, that the interests in the game, and in the personality of the "King of Swat" is by no means confined to the sporting pages.
There must be absolute cleanliness in all sports that depend on the public for support, the Route MINER is convinced because "no one player is bigger than the game. No sort of rowdiness, but even thought of that baseball or any other kind that hopes to hold public favor. The best thing that could happen would be Ruth's retirement from the game until he fully realized that baseball will not stand for temperamental or any other kind of rowdiness." But even though all that may be so, the Burlington NEWS agrees Ban Johnson knew what he was about. In assessing the minimum penalty because "with regard for the right or wrong of the Ruth case how often do we go behind the scenes to attempt to find reason for a discredited act. After all we suppose it is merely a reversion of the workings of the Golden Rule that is required but it is all too true that rule is on the top shelf being covered with dust." Still the fact "that Ruth has had his head turned by hero worshippers" will not excuse in the view of the New Orleans STATES "hedonism of the kind of which he is guilty."

If President Johnson erred in his punishment it was on the side of leniency. The Birmingham STARS says because "if the big stick wielder cannot control his emotions and temper better than he did then the game will be better off without him. It is hoped that he will profit by the example and forget that he is behind in the race for home run honors and try to do his level best to help win the American League pennant for the Yankees." The Savannah PRESS points out that Ruth "doesn't seem to have improved after his probation. It was to be hoped that his long discipline imposed by Judge Landis would be wholesome." One other thing that the incident has demonstrated, the Worcester TELEGRAM recalls, was that baseball spectators themselves fail to exercise self control. Attacks on the umpire and the like, it thinks are inexcusable and may be due to the fact that "there is money at stake" on the game. But "in any case," it continues, "the club owners, managers, and players have the greater responsibility. It may be impossible to force a crowd to show self-restraint, but the teams themselves may be made to show it." Yet "whether he is an idol or idler makes a mighty big difference to take," the Canton REPOSITORY thinks, "altho the words when said have a similar sound."

Ruth's failure to "come back" is "really sad enough to be a tragedy," the Columbia STATE suggests, but who strikes it "as rather curiously intriguing about the incident or tragedy is that the commentators and historians fail to recognize in the swift but brutal descent of the fans, other than the mob or demons, or perhaps the most natural reaction known to mankind. So long as Babe could hit 'em out, could rap out homers as easily, and as certainly as some of our home bred batters can walk back to the bench after vain endeavors at the plate, he was the idol of the fans. But the moment he falls—any, that's another story. The King is dead; long live Sisser, or Hornsby or 'Ken' Williams. There can be too much heroism shown, and too many excuses made for such action. The Dayton NEWS avers in demanding that Ruth "start to control this mental state for his own good, the good of his team, and the good of the game. He is too valuable an asset to fall into disrepute among the fans at the time he is so conspicuously in the public limelight. Because the game is bigger than any individual possibly could be," the Charlestown POST declares that "what over his presence may be worth to the New York Americans is a drawing card it is not worth enough to introduce so vicious a system into baseball."

There may be lasting benefit for Ruth to discover that the fans can change their attitudes the Hartford TIMES points out as "this experience, about which Ruth could have learned much about from Aristides and Woodrow Wilson, may be the influence which will save a good ball player from the perils of self-worship induced by mob-worship. Ruth has never shown himself to be a 'big bum' but neither is he the greatest man in the world. This is a good chance for him to take account of stock." This like the view of the Knoxville SENTINEL which also suggests that he "has another chance to reinstate himself and regain his old form and fame. But he will find it harder getting back and he will have to discipline his temperament and attend strictly to business." There has been too much attention paid to Ruth and similar incidents in the opinion of the Akron BEACON JOURNAL which believes that "the women of America came to have the influence was needed to prevent the polling of standards trading government for amusement. When a $200 fine for a temperamental ball player attracts more attention than the no fines at all for war profiteers it is time to get popular opinion back on an even keel."

The Grand Rapids PRESS inquires

whether "it is the fact of the slump which makes Babe angry or whether it is the fact of his anger which is responsible for his slump?" while the Milwaukee SENTINEL suggests that the razzing of the crowd made Ruth angry and the admiration of the golf gallery "obviously fussed" President Harding in his recent competition adding that "those who like to observe human nature in the greatest of us may speculate on the unsuspecting frailties of heroes placed in novel surroundings. These little lapses make them seem more human. We get a pleasing sense of kinship with them and a conviction that, after all, great men are fundamentally fashioned out of the same clay as ordinary people."

HOW TO SILENT GOSSIP

London.—The Bath correspondent of the Express says:
"If every village acted in regard to 'gossip' as the little Somerset village of Wellow has done, one of the most unpleasant features of country life might be killed.
Miss George, the village nurse at Wellow, became a victim of 'gossip' because she visited the village inn and nursed the landlady's little daughter, who was dying, and as a result she lost her appointment.
The sequel was a remarkable demonstration of esteem of a meeting in the village yesterday, at which Nurse George was presented with a handsome gold wristlet watch, a handbag, and a purse of money, subscribed to by almost every family in the village and district. The speakers one and all denounced the 'village gossip.'"
The vicar said he could hardly realize that people could be so unjust and unfair as to treat a woman as Nurse George was treated without allowing her to defend herself. It was an instance of breaking the Ninth Commandment. She was a good, efficient and popular nurse.
The vicar's wife made the presentation.
"Our little nurse," she said, "has been an angel of mercy." We all know what a small village is and how people will gossip. It was said that the nurse was in the habit of sitting in an undesirable place. That was untrue. She was in a public house, but it was to sit at the bedside of a dying child. Her treatment was unjust, unchristianlike, and cruel.
The headmaster of village school, the churchwarden and the leading residents added tributes to the nurse, and the wife of the landlord of the George Inn, whose daughter's dying hours were soled by the nurse, said she should never forget her devotion and sympathy.
It was announced that Nurse George had been offered a good position."

AMERICA—RUSSIA AND EUROPE

Paris.—Writing in L'ERE NOUVELLE, the Catholicist daily, its contributing editor, Jean Forcener says: "The Russians have consented to go to the Hague, and there is much to indicate that America will be here also, on condition that the Soviets do not persist in their inflexible attitude. Mr. Hughes' note is not a refusal but a demand for explanation and especially a warning addressed to the Bolsheviks.
"But there must be no mistake about the terms: 'America reappears on the scene.' It will not be a question of tremendous enthusiasm like that which brought the new world to the help of the old in 1917. Europe has a very bad press in America. From what one hears, the people have very little interest in our affairs. In the first place they consider us more or less mad, for we are always complaining of our poverty and yet we spend billions and billions for unproductive armaments.
"In America where several people have gone bankrupt, they join together to start again and begin a new business. People admire their energy and often they get money lent them. In Europe you do just the contrary: when you are ruined you scrape out all your drawers and set about ruining yourselves still more. In the end nobody (except you, nobody respects you and nobody pities you.
"And after Geneva where all the particularisms, all the cupidities, all the vanities and rivalries of Europe were spread out shamelessly, America has really no reason to judge otherwise. So that her reappearance, if it takes place as we hope, will have a purely commercial character. The business of the United States will be to put the European market to rights, perhaps to contribute towards helping the debtors to pay, and in no case to be absent when business is being done with Russia. For America alone has plenty of available money and is the only one who can really do a good stroke of business with the reconstruction of Russia.
"If American collaboration is to have good effect on Russia, it should make the Bolsheviks bow their heads. Washington will certainly be firm on questions of private property, restitution of sequestered goods, and pre-war debts. In order to inspire confidence in American capitalists, communism will have to adopt capitalist customs in international matters. It would be advisable for Lenin to make up his mind to do this so that the new discussions may be more fruitful than the preceding ones. The Bolsheviks will have to understand that directly or indirectly all the money they want can only come from America. And America will only have confidence in a general and practical arrangement, which is possible to carry out."

Frowns On Coeducation

Co-education has its advantages. Prof. John P. Tatlock of Stanford University, who has studied the subject deeply admits this fact readily. But it has its disadvantages also, he adds.
He thinks its disadvantages outweigh its advantages.
It main advantages, Prof. Tatlock says, is that it makes for a more normal social life for students of both sexes, than segregation does, and the professor believes in normality, as a general proposition. Its principal disadvantage, as he sees it, is that, among women, its tendency is in the direction of frivolity, while to men it causes distraction from study, which, after all, the professor remarks, is what young men and women go to universities for.
"The minds of college students of 75 years ago were occupied with intellectual matters to a much greater extent," he asserts, "than they are today." Seventy-five years ago segregation was the rule. Today co-education is. You can draw your own conclusions.
Why does co-education tend, among girls, in the direction of frivolity? "Well," the professor explains, "take the case of the popular college girl. She has experienced all the thrills of social success before she leaves school. She has become blasé and fatigued before she reaches her senior year. And the college boy? 'Students,' says Prof. Tatlock, "who throw themselves wholeheartedly into college life come to regard study as a disagreeable distraction from their main concern at school."
Hence the professor argues for a return to the system of segregation.

Have You A Phobia

By Dr. R. H. Bishop
In some people attacks of fear are a very real and distressing disease. The most frequent form of fear is probably agoraphobia, in which the victims are oppressed by an exaggerated feeling of anxiety the moment they come into an open space. They tremble all over, and complain of faintness, a smothered feeling, and heart palpitation. They are then likely to break into profuse perspiration and to declare that they feel as if unable to move a step.
It is remarkably that the sufferer is likely to be able, without trepidation, to cross the open space when accompanied by someone, even a little child, or carrying a stick.
The origin of this phenomenon has been explained this way:
Our primordial ancestors were arboreal. From the treetops they could without fear of reprisal, pelt their foes in the jungles under them with coconuts and the like. But when they ventured into the open spaces below, the swifter and more powerful jaguar, lion, and other enemies could "get them if they didn't watch out."
People who fear society, who blush and are exceedingly nervous when spoken to, may be called anthropophobics.
Then there are those who have the fear that things will fall upon them from on high (batophobia); and those afraid of everything and anyone (pantaphobia).
The fear that here concerns us, most is pathophobia—the fear of disease. The best way to dissipate this fear is to get thoroughly examined and to find out definitely if there is any occasion or no occasion to be disturbed.
This subject of fears is many-sided, and we must take it as seriously and as sympathetically as we would any material illness.

Q. What caused the friction between the United States and Britain along about 1840, which nearly caused a war?
A. L. D. A.
Q. The seizure and destruction of the American vessel "Caroline" on December 29, 1837, during the rebellion in Upper Canada, threatened to cause war between Britain and this country. In 1840, a Canadian named McLeod, who boasted of participating in the affair, was tried in New York. The British ministry threatened war if he were not released. His trial convinced that he was acquitted, serious trouble thus being avoided.
Q. What were the popular cut flowers in Civil War times?
A. W. U.
Q. The flowers which appeared on the market in those days were, for the most part, the daphne, camellia, abutilon, calla, sweet alyssum, and heliotrope. A few tea roses were sold.

This Green Laundry Soap Looks Like Castile

Because It Contains Olive Oil
Probably you do not know that the ordinary laundry soap contains a large quantity of "filler," including water glass made from sand. The women who do know this are careful to get the new GREEN ARROW bar made by The Palmolive Co. It is all soap, hence all cleaning power, and combines real olive oil and naphtha.

One chemist examined 27 other popular brands and found from 25% to 50% of every bar was "filler."

That is why fabric makers would not think of washing their fine materials with soap you wash them with after you buy them.

The fabric experts use olive oil soap because there is nothing like it to soften and preserve the fibers and colors, or bring out whiteness and freshness.

Imagine how water glass "filler" must cut your clothes when it gets ground into the threads in the wash, and then turns sharp and brittle when your clothes dry.

The thin spots, frayed edges and little holes that you think are caused by "wash wear" are usually caused by "filler" in the soap. You cannot see the fine, colorless particles that grind and rot the fabric.

"Filler" has no more cleaning power than sawdust, hence, until you use GREEN ARROW, you cannot know how much easier it would be to wash with pure soap, and how many bars you would save.

Many women who have tried GREEN ARROW write letters like these: "The work GREEN ARROW soap does is wonderful. I was able to do my washing with half the amount of soap that I generally use, with better results."—Mrs. G. E.

"GREEN ARROW goes farther than the soap I have been using. I like it better than other naphtha soap because it is easier on the hands, and the clothes have a sweeter odor."—Mrs. A. H. V.

HER AILMENTS ALL GONE NOW
Mrs. Sherman Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lake, Michigan.—"About one year ago I suffered with irregularities and a weakness and at times was obliged to stay off my feet. I doctored with our family physician and he finally said he could not understand my case, so I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After I had taken the first bottle I could see that I was getting better.

I took several bottles of the Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and I am entirely cured of my ailments. You may publish this letter if you wish."

Mrs. M. SHERMAN, Route 2, Lake, Mich.

There is one fact women should consider and that is this. Women suffer from irregularities and various forms of weakness. They try this and that doctor, as well as different medicines. Finally they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound, and Mrs. Sherman's experience is simply another case showing its merit.

If your family physician fails to help you and the same old troubles persist, why isn't it reasonable to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound?

KAUKAUNA HOPES TO TAKE FALL OUT OF LYNCH'S TEAM

Brautigan is Getting Set to Give League Leaders a Terrific Fight

Kaukauna — Bobby Lynch's Green Bay baseball club, the only undefeated team in the Fox River valley circuit, will appear on the Kaukauna grounds for battle Sunday afternoon. The first lap of the season has been played and the baymen are quite satisfied with themselves. It is the opinion of a great many that the Lynchmen are too well satisfied.

When Kaukauna meets the old Lake Shore team there will be big doings in the Electric city. Local officials are preparing for the biggest crowd this year. Green Bay is beatable. Manager Brautigan figures that his pill busters will take the first fall out of the Bay club.

The local squad is working hard this week in order to improve its fielding. Errors have proven costly in the last few games and efforts are being made to overcome tendencies to throw the ball wild.

Box seats again are on sale at Mulford's and Hiltzberg's. It is expected that at least 500 fans from Green Bay will be on hand when the league starts its second round of the season.

SEND CHEMICAL TRUCK TO FIRE IN COUNTRY

Kaukauna—The chemical truck of the fire department was called out Wednesday morning to the home of Barney Simpson, about six miles north of the city. A straw stack was consumed by fire of unknown origin. The stack stood between the barn and a machine shed situated rather close together.

ILLINOIS TRACK TEAM WILL NOT ENTER BIG MEET

Contest Between Illini and California Was Scheduled as Banner Event

By Associated Press
Chicago—The University of Illinois, winner of the Western Conference track and field games for the last three years, will not be an entrant in the second annual national collegiate A. A. meet at Stagg Field June 16 and 17, according to Harry Gill, coach of the Illinois track team.

Rules limiting teams in the national meet to ten men and objection to the scoring system were advanced by Coach Gill as reasons for staying out of the meet.

The fact that 13 members of the Illinois track team are seniors occupied with commencement festivities and the long period of training which the entire team has gone through were given as additional reasons by Illini officials for remaining out.

Elimination of Illini came as a distinct surprise and was regretted by followers of college sports because it means the absence of one of the expected features of the meet—a duel between Illini and California. These two teams were regarded by most authorities as the strongest contenders for national championship.

George Huff, director of athletics at Illinois said whatever action Coach Gill took would be final.

A. A. Stagg, athletic director at the University of Chicago when informed of Gill's action, said the question of limiting teams was put up to different coaches during the Pennsylvania relay games and that it was the consensus of the coaches that a limitation should be made because teams traveling long distances could not be expected to bring as many athletes as schools closer to Chicago.

"BAN" IS MIXING JUSTICE AND MERCY

New York—Ban Johnson is diluting his justice with mercy these days. Take the case of Babe Ruth.

Rube hurried into the stands and made a fan do 2100 revolutions a minute. If this had happened 10 years ago Ban would have sentenced Rube to sell programs or shuck new moon peanuts for the duration of the season.

But this year Ban writes a Valentine greeting in blank verse and orders Ruth to do the same. This is the first time about the cruellest punishment meted out thus far this season by the head of the American League, who formerly was known as a martinet, a czar, and names not so polite.

The Ruth sentence indicates that Ban has come to realize at last that baseball stars have something in common with those of the opera. They are subject to temperamental fits. Probably 10 years hence a baseball wonder who gets front page space for running amuck like an escaped steer on the streets of Bingleville will be accorded a raise in pay, the cleanup position in the batting order, and an afternoon off every ladies' day.

Dave Emulates Plank

DAVE DANFORTH (Eddie Plank inset)

They say Eddie Plank is Dave Danforth's model of all a baseball pitcher ought to be.

This isn't strange. About five years ago, after Dave had been tried out with the Chicago White Sox and found wanting, Eddie took him in hand. He gave much good advice to the youngster, and a great deal of it still sticks with him. He pitches with Eddie's old form and has many of his tricks.

"Plank told me," Dave says, "that a pitcher's biggest asset is control, and I've practiced it faithfully. Another of his tips was to 'keep the batter nervous'. That's why I'm glad of all these stories that I use a shiner. If the batter comes to the plate full of the idea that the pitcher has something that's a fooler he's worried and makes an easy mark. Eddie also emphasized cutting the corner and keeping the ball away from the batter's waist."

SCHULTZ IS NOT RELEASED; 2 NEW PITCHERS COMING

Pitchers From Aberdeen, S. D., and Tri-County League Reported As Being Good

Manager August Brandt announces that pitcher Hank Schultz has not been released as previously stated, but has been suspended due to his injured arm. Hank's arm has been giving him a good deal of trouble lately and he will likely be kept on the suspended list until the lame wing is in good condition again.

The telephone wires have been kept hot by Manager Brandt in his strenuous efforts to assemble all the parts necessary for a good ball team. These efforts have been rewarded by the addition of Jimmy Smith, former pitcher for the Aberdeen, S. D. team, but August has got his heart set on getting a partner for Jimmy. Negotiations are being made with one Rube Noble who, from reports, seems to be that kind of pitcher Noble pitched for the pennant winning Stroughton team of the Tri-County league last year and was considered one of the best in that circuit. There is as yet nothing certain about his appearance in the Menasha game but in all probability Rube will be with Appleton after that.

There is a general buzz around the Ford office which makes one think that there will be some mighty fast boys on the local side at Menasha Sunday.

You can't make FINE CIGARS unless you command a supply of FINE TOBACCOS

The exceptional tobacco buying advantage enjoyed by the makers of Harvester Cigar

ALL the filler tobaccos used in the Harvester cigar come from Cuba, whose sun and soil, rains and mists produce the aromatic flavors without which no cigar can be called "fine."

All the wrappers used in Harvester come from a little stretch of land along the Connecticut River. There, under acres of cloth, is grown a quality of "shade" wrapper leaf the like of which the tobacco world never saw until a few years ago.

To select skillfully from the crops offered annually in these two great markets, calls for judgment of a rare order and for experience that can't be deceived. So far, so good. But to procure the lots of tobacco, after you have selected them bale by bale, calls for buying power, pure and simple. That means, ability to buy in large volume, backed by the cash in hand.

The outstanding reason why Harvester cigar has built such an impressive success in so few years is—tobacco. Its makers—the Consolidated Cigar Corporation—have every advantage of buying experience and buying power. They command the best the crops yield. Second place is not for them. Harvester is a fine cigar because it is made of fine tobaccos.

It's a cigar, men—a real one.

All stopped, however, as Ruth drew near. She made a glorious picture. She was one of them—but not a hummer. As she came down the beach humming a song of a dance to herself, her body swayed with the rhythm and her feet scarcely seemed to touch the sand. Her golden hair framed her sensitive features in an aura of sunlight. Garrick saw with approval that Ruth had been stoneminded enough to hold to her curls during the days of bobbed hair.

Could those laughing, frank eyes know of crime, of anything coarse?

"You here, Dick?" she danced up to him. "Were you afraid to come alone?" Then with a twinkling shaft at Garrick, "What do you think of us... Mr. Sherlock?"

"Exclusively nice," smiled Garrick, then turned quickly as one of the youngsters muttered, "Snooping again! What does he want? You just bet he's not here to swim... Come on, fellows. He's been here long enough. I move we put them off the beach. Hey, all ready... let's give them the bum's rush!"

A general laugh followed. There was an uncertain motion. Ruth flared. "At least we can show Guy and Dick we're not so exclusive that we're rotters!" I feel partly responsible for their being here. I raced them on the road and dared them to follow—and here they are—eh, Glenn? Just this once boys. They'll not bother us again. I'll sponsor them. Come on, Glenn. smile a little and be nice."

Ruth capered over to Dick, took him by the arm and started up the beach. Guy followed with Virg, while Glenn sulked.

"I wish you had your bathing suit on, Dick. I'd enjoy a swim across the harbor with you this hot forenoon."

She nodded vivaciously back at Garrick. Even if she were doing a bit of hasty figuring on the way of their presence, thought Guy, she was perfectly at ease. Her graceful limbs showed fascinating lines through the folds of the cape she had carelessly thrown over her. "No wonder Dick's frantic over her," he thought. "She's a dangerous combination."

Still chatting, Ruth and Virg stepped into the canoe with Dick and Guy, while the others plunged into the water and swam. They were soon shipped alongside the houseboat with its gilt letters SEA VAMP.

Garrick realized as they mounted the ladder that the marine engine had materially changed the old-time houseboat from a mere scow or barge with a low flat house on it moored in a bay or river and only with difficulty and expense towed from one place to another. Now the houseboat like the "Sea Vamp" was really a fair-sized yacht.

She was perhaps sixty feet long and almost attractive craft with a hull yachty appearance and of a type which could safely make long runs along the coast, a staunch sea-worthy boat—of course without the speed of a regularly designed yacht, but more than making up in comfort what was lost in speed.

As they approached he had looked her over carefully. One of the first things he noted was that strung from two masts forward and astern was the aerial of a wireless.

They clambered aboard and dragged up the canoe. At the stern they saw a stockily-built man in set tugs making fast a dory, and taking out a rather complete set of fishing tackle and other gear and bobbies.

"Hi, Captain!" greeted Glenn, shaking the water from his eyes as he bounded on deck. "Any luck?"

"That's Captain Brock," assiduously to Garrick. "We hired him to take charge of the 'Sea Vamp.'"

"Too early for snappers yet. Got a couple of flat fish—and an eel." He caught sight of Guy and Dick and glowered under bushy eyebrows. "Who are they?" he growled under his breath.

"They're with me, Captain," explained Ruth. Mr. Garrick and Mr. Defoe, Captain Brock. Just a couple of friends who are interested in how I spend my time."

"Well, so long as it's time they are looking for, all right."

Garrick could not resist a startled second glance as, tucked away in the duffle with great care, he caught sight of an electron tube, with filament and grids, precisely the latest type used in radio receiving. He nudged Dick but Dick was equally quick. The fishing pole was equipped with a miniature aerial and he had noticed it.

unloaded it and dropped the roll of film in his coat.

There was a step on the companion-way. Softly he closed the door, rolled the hat tightly and stuffed it in his hip pocket under the tail of his coat.

The party thawed a little bit as the ice shaker thawed. Finally Garrick took advantage of a lull in the conversation.

"I may as well tell you just why we dropped in," he remarked, casually taking the diamond clasp from his pocket. "Is that by any chance yours, Virg?"

Virg looked at the clasp a moment, then gave a scream. "My lingerie clasp—that they tore off my shoulder strap at the dance! It was all—almost all—that stood between me—and the board of censorship!"

In the laugh that followed, Ruth was the first to speak. "Where did you get it, Guy?"

Garrick assumed a knowing air. "One of the caddies at the club came up to me this morning and tried to sell it to me. I thought if you could identify it, I'd watch him."

Garrick was unable to figure out whether or not there was any air of relief at the explanation. At least there was some connection between the "Sea Vamp" and the robbery.

"Was little Rae Larus at the dance?" he emboldened to ask after a proper interval.

"No," hastened Virg. "She was ill."

"And Jack Curtis?"

"Oh yes. He was there. He came politely late."

A buzzing interrupted. Virg turned quickly to Glenn, who was now seen on crossing words with Garrick as a lady killer and had resumed his monopoly of Virg. "That radio, Glenn?"

Ever eager to show off, and please Glenn drew a curtain of a built-in sideboard at the end of the saloon disclosing a complete set, including the loud-speaking horn.

He adjusted and tuned and twirled knobs and dials until he at last had it. From the loud speaker came a girl's voice.

"It's Rae!" exclaimed Ruth. "Signal back that you get her."

Glenn officially played the radio operator.

A few minutes later came the radio voice, much clearer, from the loud speaker.

"Now—Glenn—got up closer to the loud speaker—no—you know—not your cheek, Glenn!"

There was a suppressed laugh. Glenn smiled rather sheepishly. But he turned his face full toward the little horn.

Garrick had divined what was coming. "Sort of Freudian, I guess," he whispered to Ruth, recalling her mother's repetition of Ruth's psychoanalysis.

"Huh!" laughed Ruth, taking no pains to modulate her tone. "More like the terrier—His Mistress' Voice!"

"Come now—nour your lips, Glenn," came from the loud speaker followed by a laugh—then an unmistakable radio kiss.

Disconcerted after his ardent attention to Virg, Glenn for once looked as if he would have dropped through into the hold.

Ruth glanced quickly from Glenn's chagrin to Virg's stony face, then saw the humor.

"Never mind, Glenn. She kissed a couple of thousand on that wave length then!"

IRISH TO REMAIN IN BRITISH EMPIRE BY CONSTITUTION

New Draft Provides That Oath of Allegiance in Treaty Will Be Observed

By Associated Press
London.—The revised draft of the Irish constitution brought to London Wednesday by Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail Eireann, provides among other things, says the Evening News, "that Ireland shall remain within the Empire in the same way as a dominion."

"Decisions of the privy council" says the newspaper, "shall be final in all constitutional matters concerning the free state subject to certain conditions. Assent of the crown must be obtained to all legislation in the free state. The oath of allegiance provided in the Anglo-Irish treaty shall be observed."

The News says it is understood there also have been some modifications in the earlier provisions in the draft giving the free state wider control over foreign affairs than the Imperial government was prepared to concede.

EAGLES PROMOTE OLD AGE PENSION

By Associated Press

Madison, Wis. — Promotion of a plan of old age pensions will be undertaken by the Wisconsin Order of Eagles, a fraternal organization, as a result of action of delegates to the annual convention being held here. An assessment on all members is to be levied to raise a fund for carrying the pension proposal to the people of the state.

The next Wisconsin legislature meeting in January, 1923 will be appealed to by the Eagles for support of the old age pension plan. It was decided. Delegates expressed the opinion that public sentiment favorable to their proposal could be obtained by carrying a campaign of education to the people. General business affairs of the Order were discussed Wednesday.

Mrs. Amy Patterson and Mrs. Amber Stiles, who have been visiting their brother, A. C. H. Baker, for the last month, returned home to Los Angeles, Calif. Wednesday.

Mrs. Lottie Marston, who spent the winter at Los Angeles, Calif., arrived home Monday.

WOMAN'S SMOKE
SHOP IS OPENED
IN WEARY GOTHAM

Feminine Smokers Slect Cigarette Holders to Match Color of Gowns

BY MARIAN HALE

A smoke shop for women is New York's latest evidence of sophistication.

Thick gray velvet rugs, Chinese prints, lacquered furniture and stuffed davenport furnish the background for an assortment of smoker's supplies bound to please the most uncertain and coy of the sex.

When a woman was obliged to huddle at the corner tobacco shop and, if she had inhibitions, murmur something about father or brother needing some, smoking had no standards, art or precedents.

But since the opening of this new shop it is acquiring all these.

For instance, it is not now good form to smoke cigarettes in evening attire unless you use a holder—and an evening holder at that.

If you are conservative and have just one evening holder, the smartest thing you can get is the long, slender holder of black, with a tiny ring of rhinestones an inch from the end.

Second to the black in favor is a smaller holder of genuine amber with a band of jewels, ebony or tortoise shell.

But the smart thing is to have your holder exactly match your gown. You take a sample of all your evening frocks and have a holder of mother of pearl tinted to match each one.

The length of the holder is very important and is determined by your general longitude and latitude.

For daytime, you have a greater selection. For one thing, you can take your cigarette firmly between incisors, without a holder if you like—it's done. But don't mind if your teeth and fingers take on a nice rich ochre tint.

Or you may smoke a small briarwood pipe that is very snappy. You buy your tobacco in ornate little two-ounce packages.

The painted wooden or glass holder, in all colors and in all figured effects, sometimes wildly futuristic, is nifty for sport wear, but the business woman who puffs away at her desk will find something dark and serviceable in better taste.

In cigarettes you may stick to the advertised and conservatively priced brands, or you may have your own particular blend, made up especially for you, monogrammed, tinted and gold banded.

If you are in mourning, you will find a black cigarette in keeping with your costume. If you want to look interesting, you will probably fancy the long Russian cigarettes. At your luncheon parties you will pass a large box of vari-colored cigarettes that the color craving of all your guests may be satisfied.

Mrs. E. A. Cassidy and Miss Harriet Douglas, who operate the "Lady Nic" shop, copied their shop from the English idea.

"Before starting I visited the smart smoke shops for women in London. I learned all I could about tobaccos and blends and wrappings. Now I rarely smoke because I have to keep my taste keen so that I may judge accurately the new blends. I'm in the position of a tea taster, you see."

"Who but a New Yorker would have thought of such a place?" I said, and she replied:

"I am from Kansas City, Mo., and my partner is from Philadelphia. We do as much business with women from the west and middle west as we do with New Yorkers. Women in New York smoke more openly, but they don't smoke any more than your women from Omaha or Portland. Everybody's doing it now."

If You Are Well Bred

You never whisper or seem to be carrying on a very private conversation with one person when a number are present.

Likewise you never direct your whole conversation to one person when you are in a group, even though you are speaking entirely for the benefit of some one particular person.

Nothing is more annoying to a guest than to feel that she is ignored or that her presence is not desired.

Irvin Sohn of Hilbert called on Appleton friends Wednesday.

Adventures Of
The Twins

The Electric Mountain lay before the Twins, one of the Seven Mountains they had to cross to get to the Kingdom of the Diddyevers.

Sparks were flying from its tangles of cross-cross wires, snipping and snapping and snarling and jumping, until the mountain looked like a million angry cats, or a hundred trolley cars off the track.

"Oooh!" shivered Nancy. "It's awful, Nick."

"Oh, come on," urged Nick, courageously. "We've got on rubber shoes, and Mr. Pim says we can't get hurt."

So they started up. The sparks jumped at them and snapped at them and flashed at them, but the Twins never felt a thing. It was true that their gossamer made them perfectly safe, and they knew better than to touch anything with their hands.

Near the top the sparks became so furious and fast that you'd certainly have thought a giant had set off a million Fourth-of-July sparklers at once!

But Nancy and Nick walked through them as bravely as lions.

At last they reached the top, and looked down on the other side.

"Oh, look, Nick," pointed Nancy. "It's all lovely down there. No more ugly wires or sparks or anything. Just green grass and lovely flowers everywhere. I've a notion to gather a bouquet to take to Princess Therma."

But Nick wasn't listening. He had suddenly missed something. The red feather pen had jumped out of his pocket and was clinging to a large red horseshoe with steel ends, like the tiny ones you buy at the toy store for a nickel. You see the feather was out of a wing of the furious falcon that guarded the gate of King Indig's Palace, and it was steel. The horseshoe magnet had pulled it away and there it clung.

Nick held out his hand, forgetting Pim Pim's warning. And as his fingers closed around the steel feather they stuck, too. He was held fast.

OUR FIRST YEAR

Chapter 55 — Jack Isn't Jealous
By a Bride

The differences of opinion which caused a vast amount of unnecessary heartache in our first year were produced by situations we could easily have avoided.

Our acknowledged differences proved easy to cure; but the subtle and hidden hurts were like submerged rocks, uncharted reefs which menaced our future.

Jack's pride was one of these. My extravagance was another.

By husband was proud of his pride. He had promised before our wedding to be superior to jealousy. After marriage, if Jack ever were jealous of Bart, or of what I did with my time, or of my mental and social interests apart from his own, he managed to live up to his code and conceal his feelings.

I began to wish that my husband were not so different from the ordinary man. And every time the idea occurred to me I'd think of Mrs. Herrod, and wonder if chess were the sole bond between her and Jack.

And I'd half decide Jack did not get jealous because he really didn't love me to the exclusion of all women—as I wanted him to love me.

Somehow my fine theory about ultra modern love between husbands and wives was proving a bit shaky. Although I had set about to follow the new ideas about marriage I wasn't equal to the strain of them.

But Jack seemed to be. Jack could love me devotedly and yet find tremendous pleasure in playing chess with Mrs. Herrod.

One outstanding fact in their friendship annoyed me: Mrs. Herrod wrote to my husband regularly. I discovered her notes every time I hunted up Jack's handkerchiefs for the laundry.

Monday was always a blue day for me. I had to go through the same struggle over and over, had to put away the temptations to treat my husband's private correspondence as my own.

If Jack was proud of his pride, I was proud of my conscience, my restraint, my will. Moreover, after the affair of the mustache, I was pretty tender of my man's feelings. And Jack was decidedly tender of me.

But this mutual consideration did not make us confidential.

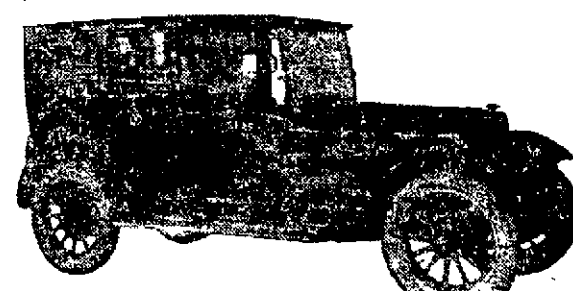

I knew, Jack knew, the new psychology speaks true when it advises

"See--it's thicker"

"I'm glad you have the new Roberta's. The creamy center is so thick and delicious. I'm going to serve some at my party."

Crisp brown waffle wafers—and a deep layer of creamy filling. They dissolve in your mouth, leaving an indescribably delicious taste. Buy them at your grocers—in five-cent pocket packages, by the pound or in air-tight tin boxes. Ask for "Johnston's Robertas."
